Another matter which came up was with regard to providing a screen on the Meridian Road along the front of the town's nuisance ground and this will be attended to.

The regular meeting of the Council will be held tonight in the Town Hall.

Peace Dawns In Ireland

After many long and bitter years of struggle, marked by horrors and atrocities of all kinds, it would at last appear as if a real peace was dawning in Ireland. With the passage of the Irish Free State constitution by the British Parliament it was felt that peace would almost immediately follow, inasmuch as by that constitution Ireland was granted a larger measure of home rule than was dreamed of by the Home Rulers of the past, and given as liberal and democratic a form of government as is enjoyed by any country today. Unfortunately, there were a few irreconcilables who would accept nothing less than absolute independence and complete severance of all ties with the British Empire, and so the warfare continued, confined, however, to the Irish people themselves, but terribly destructive of life and property.

However, on the anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth, Edmond de Valera, the Irish republican leader, addressed a letter to all ranks in the republican army calling for discontinuance of the armed struggle, ordering the laying aside of all arms, and declaring that the "republic" can no longer be defended by arms. Further sacrifices on the part of the republican irregulars would, Valera declared, be vain, and the continuance of the struggle be unwise in the national interests. At the same time the republican chief of staff, Frank Aiken, issued an order that all arms were to be dumped.

All friends of Ireland must rejoice at this decision. The cause of home rule for Ireland has been won, handsomely so, but the plan of setting up a republic in Ireland could never be anything but an idle dream, and the longer it was persisted in, the greater the suffering and loss forced on the Irish people; and the longer the period that must elapse before the Emerald Isle would launch on an assured future of happiness and prosperity.

For this happy culmination of the tragic events of the past few years, the Free State Government and its staunch friends and supporters are deserving of all praise and full credit. From the date of the creation of the Free State, the Government of Ireland have loyally fulfilled their treaty obligations with the British Government, have staunchly upheld the Free State constitution, and have energetically set to work to bring order out of chaos and establish all the institutions essential to the maintenance of law, order and good government. In the face of seemingly unmountable difficulties they have succeeded in, what is after all, an amazingly short space of time.

Irishmen have done some wonderful things for the British Empire throughout the centuries of the past. Britain owes much to them. Even in the recent Great War when Britain's enemies sought to induce Irishmen to take advantage of the Empire's life and death struggle to declare their absolute independence and join forces with Britain's enemies, the rank and file of the Irish people refused and remained staunchly loyal, and tens of thousands of them laid down their lives that the Empire might be saved to do its great work in the world. And what would the world be if it was not for the strong hand and steady influence of the British Empire?

The ending of the unhappy struggle in Ireland will likewise serve to remove the greatest of all obstacles to the development of a still greater understanding and cordiality between the Empire and the United States. Home Rule for Ireland has for years been almost as great an issue in the United States as in Great Britain and Ireland. It has been used to create misunderstandings and cultivate hatred of Britain throughout the United States, and has led to many ill-considered statements against Great Britain, even by prominent men, in the heat and excitement of election campaigns in the big republic. United States money has very largely financed the armies of discontent and revolt in Ireland, but, with the granting of the Free State constitution, the vast majority of the American people were agreed that Ireland's aspirations had been met, and with but few exceptions support for Valera and his irreconcilables was discontinued.

If Valera and his followers, having now recognized the inevitable insofar as armed resistance to the Free State Government is concerned, will throw their energy and influence to developing Ireland along the lines and arts of peace, Ireland may with confidence look forward to a bright future, moving steadily forward to her proper and rightful place as one of the outstanding nations in that great sisterhood of nations which go to make up the British Empire.

Natural Resources Bulletin

Production of Natural Gas Increasing In Alberta

The Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa—says:

In 1922 Canada produced 14,554,097 thousand cubic feet of natural gas. Of this quantity Ontario produced 7,800,000 thousand feet. Alberta was second with an output of 4,600,000 feet. Ontario, however, provided 622,774 thousand feet less than in 1921, while Alberta increased her 1921 production by 1,454,116 thousand cubic feet. With the intensive prospecting and drilling, and the number of new gas producing wells that are being brought in the present year should show a still further increase in production in Alberta.

PAIN IN THE JOINTS

Is An Indication That The Blood Is Thick and Watery.

The first sign of rheumatism is frequently a pain and swelling of one of the joints. If this is not treated through the blood, which is the seat of the disease, the poison spreads, affecting other joints and tissues—sometimes rheumatism attacks the heart and is fatal.

A remedy that has corrected many cases of rheumatism, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the blood so that the poisonous automatic matter is drawn out of the system as nature intended. Miss Gertrude Denne, Washago, Ont., was attacked with rheumatism and found relief through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:—About a year ago I was attacked by rheumatism and for two weeks was confined to my bed. The trouble was so painful, affecting the joints of my limbs so that I could not stand alone. Mother had a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house and thought they might help me. I began taking them, and when I had taken these pills got a further supply, with the result that the rheumatism vanished and I was a well girl. I may add that my mother and two of my sisters have also used the pills for the various ailments with equal success, and now we are never without them in the house.

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or weak nerves, buy a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How to Address Her

When Lucy A. Goldsmith, export manager of the Acolina Company, and one of the best known women in foreign trade, attends conventions and banquets she is very often the only woman present. The chairman at these functions have found difficulty in using the correct phrase to open the meeting. "Gentlemen" would be untrue; "Lady and Gentlemen" hardly seemed to fill the bill. Finally one chairman, more ingenious than the others, advised, "Miss Goldsmith and Gentlemen," and this form of address is now de rigueur in foreign trade circles—New York Globe.

"Vernon," said the teacher of the juvenile class, "define 'ostentation.'" "It's the way our neighbors show off," answered Vernon.

Lake Of Epsom Salt

Curious Lake Is Found In British Columbia

The wildest nightmares are no worse than some realities. Imagine a lake of Epsom salt. It exists at Basque in British Columbia. It is at least 41 feet deep and perhaps more. The miners who discovered the lake drilled to that depth and were then obliged to cease for lack of drilling facilities. The lake is said to cover an area of seven acres, and to have a hard crystal surface. When the snow melts from the mountains the surface is covered six inches deep with water, which quickly becomes brine. Then the sun evaporates it, and all that is necessary is to score and lift off the thick crust that has formed. Spring freshets prepare an other seven-acre pan. It is, in this respect, like the lake asphalt in Trinidad.

More than ten million pounds of cattle, live weight, have been sold by the farmers of Western Canada under the pooling plan since co-operative selling was first put into effect at the St. Boniface market on February 15th. Good markets have been found, especially in Ontario, where during March and April large numbers of feeder cattle were shipped.

HAD BAD PAINS IN HER HEART

Nerves Were Very Bad

Mrs. John Case, R. R. No. 4, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—I wish to say that I have been bothered very much with my heart and nerves. I doctored with two different doctors, but did not find much relief. I would have such bad pains in my heart, at times, I would be almost afraid to move or breathe, and at night I could not sleep. If the pains in my heart were gone, my nerves would be so bad I could not sit still and would only get a little sleep by being frightened. My stomach was also very bad and I could eat but very little, and then only certain things or I would have so much distress which always made my heart worse.

I had been suffering for nearly two years until one day I was taking to our druggist about the way I felt. He advised me to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a fair trial. I have now taken five boxes and am feeling so much better. I am able to do my own work, and can eat anything I wish. I cannot praise

Canada's Newsprint Industry Has Made Important Strides In The Past Few Years

In March last a new record was established by the newsprint industry of Canada, not only in manufacture but in exports. For the first time the monthly record exceeded in each case the 100,000-ton mark. The output of the Canadian mills in March was 106,361 tons, while the exports were 112,450 tons, a portion of the latter being shipped from stock. In May last a previous record was made, when production reached the 90,000-ton mark; the increased output in the past eleven months, therefore, represents a substantial advance.

New paper-making machines are being installed in many mills, and in these also Canada is establishing records. Until about two years ago no paper-making machine had been built in Canada. The growth of the pulp and paper industry in this country was, however, assuming such proportions as to warrant the Dominion Engineering Company of Montreal, entering upon the construction of these mammoth machines. Their first unit, made for the Laurentide Pulp and Paper Company, produces a sheet of paper 146 inches in width. What is remarkable about the machine, however, apart from it being the first constructed in Canada, is the fact that it is also the fastest running newsprint machine yet built, producing up to 1,866 feet per minute of 146-inch paper.

Machines of record width have been installed by the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company, and a number of other companies are installing these mammoths. These have a paper width of 224 inches, and run at the rate of 800 feet per minute, producing from 80 to 100 tons of newsprint per day. This width visualized may be understood when it represents a strip of paper nineteen feet six inches wide, on which three automobiles could drive abreast. The output of this latter machine in one minute of running time would produce 2,757 sheets of paper equal in size to a four-page, eight-column newspaper.

Coincident with the development of the newsprint industry and the introduction of these enormous machines is the greatly augmented demand upon the pulpwood supply of Canada. If our resources of pulpwood could be assured of depletion only by industry, with the greater attention being given to scientific forestry methods and replanting, the prospects are good for a continuous supply of this raw material, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior. Unfortunately this is not the case. Forest fires are taking a tremendous toll, not only of the tree which is of pulpwood size today, but of that which would produce the pulpwood supply of ten, twenty or more years hence—the young growth and seedlings are destroyed, and the ground left barren.

Many other industries benefit through the development of the pulp and paper industry. The engineering trades supply large quantities of machinery for the pulp and paper mills and for the water-power development so closely associated with the industry. Large supplies of materials other than the raw pulpwood are required, the manufacturers of wire screening and felt benefiting to a considerable extent.

Probably the railways are more directly concerned than any other interest in the growth of the pulp and paper industry. The freight created by the necessary transportation of supplies, such as coal, etc., and the delivery to consumers of the finished product or to the mills of the United States of pulpwood and woodpulp constitutes one of the large sources of revenue. During the year ending March 31 last the exports of pulpwood were 1,086,482 cords, while mechanical and chemical pulp amounted to $30,000 tons and newsprint of 1,006,623 tons.

The value of the pulp and paper industry in Canada, in export trade alone, for the same period, represented $122,564,889, $72,667,856 of this being accounted for by newsprint, $32,451,082 by other paper. What it represents in employment is shown by the 1921 report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics of the industry, which gives the number of employees as 23,524, with wages and salaries as $24,129,090.

When it is realized that this is but one of the many industries dependent upon the forests for existence, Canada has good cause to be alarmed over the tremendous invasion which forest fires are making upon this natural resource.

Spending Large SUMS on Highways

The sum of $2,500,000 will be expended on roads and bridges this year by the British Columbia Government, it was announced by Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works. Of the total appropriation $1,896,000 will be spent on highway construction, $700,000 for bridges and about $200,000 on the construction of settlers' trails in the newer sections of the province.

Saskatchewan Clay

Extension of Pottery Industry is Looked For

Investigations are now being made by English interests which are likely to lead to further important development of the well-known clay of Saskatchewan. On behalf of these interests the Saskatchewan Government is supervising extensive drilling at one of the principal deposits, with a view to obtaining comprehensive samples, and if possible, blocking out a quantity of not less than 50 thousand tons. Satisfactory results will probably lead to considerable extension of the pottery industry in Western Canada.

Western Canada Produces Some Of The Best Light Horses Raised On The Continent

The trend of the times all over the continent in recent years has been towards the gradual disappearance of the light horse, and this tendency has been as noticeable in Canada as elsewhere. The general adoption of the automobile, newer modes of travel, the craze for speed, have all contributed to the relegation of this splendid animal to an era that is past, and the popularity of the rider and driver is now largely confined to a limited coterie of lovers and enthusiasts. In Canada the gradual absorption of the ranges and the increase in farming settlement has resulted in a demand for a larger and heavier type of animal. The brilliant value of the saddle horse and driver has largely been supplanted by mechanical devices, and the light horse is only desired now by a limited number of reactionaries whose love for horsemanship persists in spite of the progressive methods of the times.

There is every indication, however, that Canada is one of the few remaining strongholds of the light horse, a country breeding excellent animals which, from the superiority of their qualities, are in constant demand elsewhere. It may be remembered that at the horse show at the first Royal Winter Fair held in Toronto in December last, a greater number of animals were exhibited than at the famed Madison Square Garden show, indicative of what Canada has to offer and how the Dominion has come to be regarded in this phase of husbandry. Just previous to this Peter Welch, a Calgary, Alberta, breeder, took some of his ponies to horse shows in the Eastern United States, and, ridden by his daughter and sons, they secured a total of eighty-four prizes at Springfield and Brockton, Mass. In the previous year, with ten horses entered at the Spokane Inter-State Fair, Calgary, exhibitors brought away thirty-five prizes and two championships. Both championships were secured by Alberta horses, which took ribbons in practically every event in which they were entered.

In January last a polo pony expert from New York purchased thirty-seven ponies from D. B. Jenkinson, a Cochrane, Alberta, rancher, who paid $15,000 for them. The ponies were all raised in Alberta from thoroughbred sires, and were fully trained for their purpose. The purchaser, who shipped them through to Virginia, stated that they constituted the finest lot of ponies he had ever seen raised on one farm. They went direct from the open ranges of Southern Alberta to the polo fields of the Eastern States.

This may be, to many people, a new phase of Western Canadian culture, but it is one which has been in existence for many years. Though the movement is one of relatively small volume it is a constant one, and periodically numbers of them are going from Alberta's ranges to the Eastern States and elsewhere. In the days when the ranches flourished in Southern Alberta, there were six polo teams in that territory made up solely by ranchers, and these utilized exclusively native-bred ponies.

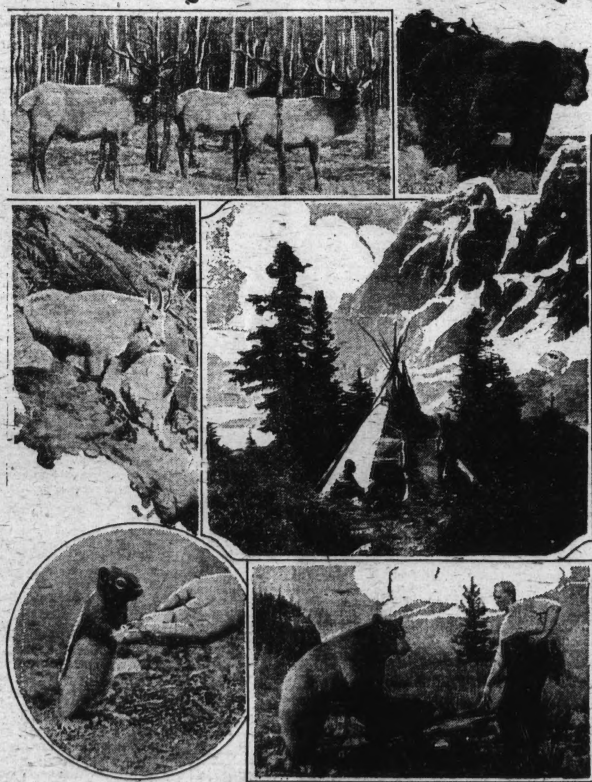

The foundation of the polo pony and light horse of Western Canada has been the native Cayuse, the same animal which constituted the first friend of the rancher and cowboy—the cow pony. The natural qualities which made him invaluable on the ranges, his lightness, stamina, and rapidity in turning, were exactly what was required for polo playing. The introduction of thoroughbred sires imparted greater speed and blood and produced, from the wild ponies of the ranges, some of the continent's best polo ponies, animals highly prized and valued in great demand. Similarly some of the finest hunters and riding horses have been produced from these little Western Canadian horses.

Western Canada is one of the areas where the era of the light horse has not yet passed, where he still has a place in the economic life of the territory. The popularity of mechanical transport has not yet put an end to his utilitarian value, and even should this come to pass, which is doubtful, he will always be there to supply the needs of horse-lovers of the continent. There is a constant importation of fine sires to raise the standard of these animals, and a direct stimulus to the breeding of these light animals was given by the Prince of Wales when he introduced into Southern Alberta some of the finest thoroughbred horses. It is to raise the standard of these animals, and a direct stimulus to the breeding of these light animals was given by the Prince of Wales when he introduced into Southern Alberta some of the finest thoroughbred horses. It is to raise the standard of these animals, and a direct stimulus to the breeding of these light animals was given by the Prince of Wales when he introduced into Southern Alberta some of the finest thoroughbred horses.

Hog Grading in Practice

The hog raiser who lives sufficiently close to a pecking house to market his own meat as well as his hogs, is the most rapid advance in the quality of his stock. He is able to watch the grading and to learn precisely the type of hog that is classed as select. The ten per cent. premium the farmer receives for select gives special point to his interest.

WILD ANIMAL LIFE in JASPER NATIONAL PARK

Famous for its ever-fascinating natural beauty, Jasper National Park has other claims to distinction. It is the largest wild animal sanctuary in the world. It is marvellously rich in plant life, its streams, and lakes abound in fish, and a great variety of birds are found there. The grandeur of its mountains—there are over 100 lofty peaks in its area—the sheer of its glaciers, the glory of its woodlands, the variety of its streams, and the brightness of its waters, all combine in allurements of eye and mind, not found elsewhere in Canada.

All the main animal families of this country are found in Jasper National Park. The list of them reads like a section of a work on natural history. There are the Big Horn Mountains, Sheep, Mountain Goats, Wolves (black and grey), Coyotes, Foxes, Mule Deer, Moose, Caribou, Elk, Lynx, Cougar—as many call them Mountain Lion—Beaver, Marmots, Muskrats, Squirrels, Rabbits, Porcupines, Weasels, Ermine, Minks, Martens, Fishers, Otters and Grizzly, Black and Cinnamon Bears.

Some of these have grown accustomed to mankind and accept its presence without fear. Hence black and brown, or cinnamon bears, do not hesitate to come near the lodge and the camps in search of dainties which add to the variety of the diet nature provides for them. Deer, Elk, Beaver, Rabbits and Porcupines are also frequent visitors to points where they are readily observable, or are permanent residents in places easily reached by those who do not care about hunting, but are yet interested in animal life.

With all this prodigality of wild animal life, it is surprising to know that no poisonous snakes or reptiles have ever been found within Jasper Park, and that the greater part of the area is almost entirely free from mosquitoes and insect pests.

Park is another attraction that every visitor appreciates. No less than seventy different species of birds have so far been recognized.

Outside of the park confines there is plenty of hunting for those to whom the chase is as the wine of life. There are many trails of the areas where big game abounds, and the hunters who score "easy killing" may have all the thrills and excitement they desire. Experienced guides are always available for hunting and exploring parties, or for those who simply desire to wander leisurely through a never-ending succession of scenic beauties.

With its majestic mountains, Mount Edith Cavell being the highest (11,083 feet) its numerous glaciers, its beautiful stretches of woodland, valley, streams and lakes, and its unrivalled wild animal life, Jasper National Park is an alluring prospect alike for the seeker for health, the searcher for recreation, the angler, or the hunter of big game.

"I could see by the tracks that there was a number of 'em; as many as five or six," the old man summed up. "I followed their sign as far as I could, but I lost it at the creek. Then I went back to the house and sent some of the boys out to scout around before I come down here after you."

"Where do you suppose they could have taken him?" Townbridge asked. "They'd never dare bring him to town."

"Gawd knows, Lem! There's more pockets and drifts up in them hills than there is jack-rabbits. 'Tain't likely the boys'll find any new sign. Featways not in time, not before that—of a Moran—it was him did it, damn him! I know it was, 'n' for Gawd's sake, what are we going to do?"

"The best thing to do, Bill, is to get you out of this town, before Thomas shows up and jumps you. I'll shoot the—"

"Luckily, he's away just now," Townbridge went on, ignoring the interruption. "Come with me. He led the way into the house. The frank, he said to the red-headed proprietor, 'Is Moran in town to-day?'"

"None," The Irishman regarded Santry with interest. "He went out this morning with four or five men."

"That's the man," said Townbridge, when he had quieted Santry's rant. "Because we have good reason to believe that, if these acts do not proceed from you, they proceed from your agent, and you're responsible for what he does. I know anything about law. This man Moran has carried things with a high hand in this community, but now he's come to the end of the rope, and he's going to be punished. That means that you'll get your toes, too, if he's acting under your orders. The cattle man was getting into his stride now that the first moments of his embarrassment were passing. His voice rang with authority, which the Senator was quick to recognize, although he gave no evidence of being impressed. "Has Moran been acting for you, that's what we want to know?"

"My dear fellow," Townbridge laughed rumblingly. "If you'll only stop for an instant to think, you'll see how absurd it is."

"A frank answer to a frank question," Townbridge persisted. "Has he been acting for you? Do you, at the moment, know what has become of Wade, or where he is?"

"That's the stuff," Townbridge said, whose temples were throbbing under the effort he put forth to hold himself within bounds. "He's dead!"

"I do not!" the Senator said, bluntly. "And I'll say freely that I would not tell you if I did."

Santry's hands opened and shut convulsively. He was in the net of spinning upon Rexhill when Townbridge seized him.

"You're a liar," he roared, struggling in his friend's hands. "I'll be at you. By the great horned god, I'll make him tell!"

"That's the stuff," Townbridge said, whose temples were throbbing under the effort he put forth to hold himself within bounds. "He's dead!"

"Rexhill's here, ain't he?" Townbridge asked then. "Tell him there's gentlemen here to see him. He doesn't know me."

When Santry, with the instinct of his breed, hitched his revolver to a more convenient position on his hip, Townbridge reached out and took it away from him. He dared not trust the old man in his present mood. He intended to question the Senator, to probe him, perhaps to threaten him; but the time had not come to shoot him.

"I'll keep this for you, Bill," he said soothingly, and dropped the weapon into his coat pocket. "I'm going to take you up with me, for the sake, or the effect of that face of yours, looking the way it does right now. But I'll do the talking, and I won't take long. We're going to act some, too."

Their visit had no visible effect upon Rexhill, however, who was too much master of himself to be caught off his guard in a game which had reached the point of constant surprise. He was not concerned, for the meeting was frankly hostile, but he did not appear to be perturbed by the fact that he had not been asked that might be offered by the enemy.

Santry, Rexhill, Townbridge introduced himself. "You never met me. I'm from the High Creek country. My name is Rexhill."

"I've heard of you. I know your friend there by sight," he lingered slightly over the word "friend," he glanced toward Santry. "There's a warrant out for him, I believe."

"There's a warrant out for one of your—friends, too, Tug Bailey," Townbridge retorted dryly, hoping that something would come of his repartee; but nothing did. If the news surprised Rexhill, as it must have, he did not show it. "I've just sworn it off," the rancher continued, "but that's not why I'm here. I'm here to tell you that Rexhill, Wade, whom you know, has been kidnapped."

Santry stifled an exclamation of rage in answer to a quick look from his friend.

Kidnapped from his own range in broad daylight, the latter went on. "I represent his friends, who mean to find him right away, and it has occurred to me that you may be able to assist us in our search."

"Just why has that idea occurred to you?" Rexhill asked calmly, at though out of mere curiosity. "I'd like to know."

A bit baffled by this attitude of composure, Townbridge hesitated, for it was not at all what he had expected to come of. If the Senator had fallen into a passion, the cattleman would have responded with equal heat; but now, with less sense than usual, he was calm.

It was barely possible, after all, that Tug Bailey had shot Jensen out of personal spite; or, at the worst, had been the tool of Moran alone. One had hardly associated the thought of murder with the very proper-looking gentleman, who so calmly faced them and twiddled his eyeglasses between his fingers.

"Why should that idea have occurred to you?" the Senator asked again, so far as it was information. Wade is also liable to arrest for complicity in the Jensen murder; in addition, to which he has effected a delivery and burglarized my office. It seems to me, if he has been kidnapped as you say, that I am the person to have any interest in his welfare, or his whereabouts. Why do you come to me?"

"That's the most for Santry's self-restraint. "What is the use of talking to him?" he demanded. "If he ain't done it himself, don't we know that Moran did it?"

He shook a startled look at Rexhill, who paid no attention whatever to him, but who deliberately looked in another direction.

"That is why we are here," said Townbridge, when he had quieted Santry's rant. "Because we have good reason to believe that, if these acts do not proceed from you, they proceed from your agent, and you're responsible for what he does. I know anything about law. "Put that man out of this room!" Rexhill had arisen in all of his majestic majesty, roused to wrath at last. His pudgy finger shook as he pointed to the door, and his fat face was congested. "I'm not here to be insulted by a jail-bird. Put him out!"

Townbridge's eyes glared at him, angrily, although he still kept hold on Santry, for this was the sort of thing he had expected to meet. He did not think that Rexhill would confess completely in the kidnapping this early in the game; but he had looked for an outburst of anger which would give him the chance he wanted to free his own mind of the haze that was in it.

He had wanted the chance to make Rexhill feel that his hour of atonement was close at hand, and getting nearer every minute.

"Easy, now," he admonished. "We're going to do some business, but we won't put off. You've said just what I looked for to you say. You've denied knowledge of this thing. I think with Santry here that you're a liar, a God-forsaken liar."

He drew closer to burst with passion, and held him with a gaze his fury could not deny. "May I tell you, you Senator, when we're here to prove all this against you, if you're in Crawling on Water, then, well ride you on the rail."

"Now," Townbridge said to Santry, when they were downstairs again, "you got out of town hot-foot. Ride to my place. Take this." He scribbled a few lines on a scrap of an envelope. "Give it to my foreman. Tell him to meet me with the boys where the trial is held. We'll find Wade. If we have to trade our beds for lanterns and kill every horse in the valley, we'll do it."

The two men shook hands, and Santry's eyes were fixed with a new hope. The old man was grateful for one thing at least, the time for action had arrived. He had spent his youth on the plains in the days when every man was a law unto himself, and the years had not lessened his spirit.

"I'll be right after you, Bill," Townbridge concluded. "You going first to break the news to Miss Purcell. She'll hear it anyway and be anxious. She'd better get it straight from me."

Lem Brownbridge had seen only one woman, but the recollection was so indelibly impressed in his mind, it had happened in his boyhood, at the ranch where he still lived, when a messenger had arrived to tell him of the death of the older Townbridge, whose horse had stepped into a prairie-hole and rolled with his rider.

The picture of his mother's collapse he could not forget, or his eyes, looking through the tears, had passed away, leaving him parentless. For months afterwards he had awakened at night, crying out that she was dead.

The whole scene seemed to flash when he thought of his mother's appearance, and saw her face flush and then pale, as his mother had done. The girl had actually lain, for she was young and wonderfully strong, but she came so near to it that he was obliged to leave her with his arm to keep her on her feet. That was cruel, too, for he loved her. But presently she recovered, and away from his mind all thought of himself by her pitiful appeal to him to go instantly in search of Wade.

"We'll find him, Dorothy, don't you worry," he declared. "An appearance of confidence had far more to do with it. I came around to tell you myself because I wanted you to know that we are right on the job."

"I had essence on my scalp. It broke out in little pimples which formed a hard crust. My scalp itched and burned so badly, I was up half the night. My hair fell out terribly, and I could not comb it."

"This trouble lasted about three months before I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bought more and used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap, and I was healed." (Signed) Miss Gertrude Harrington, 1601 Delaware Ave., Butte, Mont.)

When you look at other people, your impression of them is governed very largely by the expression that you find upon their faces.

We commonly speak of "the expression of the face," and we have so long continued the use of that phrase that we really think the eyes have expression. The eye proper has no expression, but the movement of the eyeball and the opening and closing of the lids, in which the eye makes the so-called expression of the eye. The upper lid has only an up-and-down motion, so that it could not be very expressive; but the lower lid can be moved upward and downward and can be pushed about by the muscles of the face so as to make a series of pleasant-looking wrinkles about the corner of the eye.

More than seventy-five per cent of facial expression is due to the muscles of the face. These are supported upon the teeth and the bones surrounding the teeth that depend for their shape upon the stability of the teeth. We are apt, therefore in saying that the great majority of all facial expression is due to the teeth; otherwise, is due to the region that is dependent for its support, and consequently, its appearance, upon the teeth.

In addition to the movement of the muscles of the face, the appearance of the teeth themselves is a very large element of expression. If you look at a mouth full of clean, pearly, well-shaped, healthy teeth surrounded by natural pink gums, you get immediately a pleasing effect that is out of all proportion to the general beauty of the face. In fact, many faces that are most unprepossessing when in repose, are extremely attractive when they smile, because of a pleasing dental equipment. When a beautiful woman shows, when she smiles, either an irregular, or a decayed, or a shamed set of teeth, she

"But how can you find him in all those mountains, Lem? You don't even know which side of the range they've hidden him on."

He reminded her that he had been born in Crawling Water Valley, and that he knew every draw and canyon in the mountains; but in his heart he realized that to search all these places would take half a lifetime. He could only hope for the chance, or good fortune, might lead them promptly to the spot they sought.

"I do not think that Senator Rexhill knows where Gordon is," she asked. "Is he in this, too?"

"I don't know for sure," he answered. "I believe Moran is acting under Rexhill's orders, but I don't know how much Rexhill knows of the details. If I knew that, it would be fairly easy. I'd . . . His strong hands gripped the back of a chair under his knuckles showed while under their tan. "I'd choke it out of him!"

"Oh, it was there was only something I could do," Dorothy walked helplessly. "A woman never can do anything in a crisis but wait!" Her distress was so pitiable to Gordon, that Townbridge averted his gaze.

"We'll do all that can be done, Dorothy," he assured her. "Trust me for that. Besides—A thought had just flashed into his head which might relieve her sense of helplessness. "Besides, we're going to need you here in town to keep us informed of what goes on."

"I can learn anything, how can I get word to you?" she asked, her face brightening somewhat. "You'll be up in the hills, won't you?"

"I'll try to keep a man at the big pine all the time. If you find out anything send word to him."

"Oh, yes, I will, I will. That'll be something anyhow." Her eyes sparkled with excitement as she gave him both her hands. "Good-by, Lem!"

"Good-by, Dorothy," he said solemnly. "Remember her name. I know just how it is. We'll find him for you!"

Winnipeg Board of Trade Has Novel Plan to Spread Information.

The radio is being used to advertise Western Canada. The Winnipeg Board of Trade recently launched an advertising scheme of $2,500 lectures from the Government Station at that point, each to be given by a different speaker. The scheme originated in the wide interest evinced in Winnipeg history and progress which has been increased substantially by the increasing use of the radio.

Str John's Willows

Letters of Sir John Macdonald, edited by Joseph Eppie, show that Sir John in the studies of last century formulated a plan for the conservation of the forest wealth of Canada, and suggested stringent action to prevent forest fires. What a much richer heritage Canada would have had today if the statesmanlike advice had been followed? Sir John suggested replanting as carried out in Northern Norway. What he has done for Canada has equal force today—Sir John's Catharines Standard.

Winnipeg.—It is reported that the Canada Colonization Association is to be reorganized immediately upon a new basis, with the Federal Government, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railway equally represented upon a new board of directors.

It is stated that M. A. Brown, president of the association since its inception, has resigned that position and that a meeting will be held in Winnipeg to complete the reorganization. It is stated that D. C. Coleman and Col. J. S. Dennis, for the Canadian Pacific; A. E. Warren, Vice-President and General Manager of Western Lines, for the Canadian National; and Dr. W. J. Black, Deputy Minister of Immigration, will have places on the new board.

It is added that the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways have agreed to contribute $100,000 a year for five years toward the funds of the organization to be added to the general grant.

According to another report, Sir Augustus Nanton, prominent Winnipeg financier, has been asked to head the reorganized association. Strong pressure is being brought to bear to have him accept the chairmanship of a board of management, which will in future conduct the affairs of the organization.

D. C. Coleman, Vice-President, P. L. Naismith, Calgary, and Col. J. S. Dennis, Commissioner of Immigration and Colonization, will be the representatives of the C.P.R. on the board. D. Robb, Vice-President; A. E. Warren, General Manager, Western Region; and E. A. Field, Lands Commissioner, will represent the C.N.R., this report declares.

Complete reorganization will be effected at a meeting of the association here. It is understood, says the report, that the Dominion Government and the two railway companies have undertaken jointly to finance the association to the extent of $1,000,000 spread over a period of five years.

Steps have already been taken to run special settlers' excursions into Canada during the present summer from all parts of the United States.

Trade Treaty With France

Bill Introduced Into Senate Is Given Second Reading

Ottawa.—The Senate gave second reading to the bill to give effect to the trade treaty with France and adopted in committee all clauses except three of the combines bill.

Speaking on the French treaty, Senator Baughen said there were two conditions which made trade with France difficult at the present time: the depreciation in the value of the franc and the lack of knowledge by the French people of Canadian production. Once the franc regained its former value, and there was a fair prospect of this being accomplished shortly, trade with France would be very valuable.

He instanced the development of Canada's canned salmon trade with France as an example of what could be done by equating the French people to the possibilities of Canadian trade.

PRAYER FOR PEACE

PRESIDENT HARDING MAKES NOTABLE ADDRESS AT WASHINGTON

Washington.—Standing in Arlington Memorial Amphitheatre and facing the wooded slopes where rest thousands of the war dead of the nation, President Harding uttered a prayer that the United States "do its full part toward making war unlikely, if not impossible."

"We have already proved that we can have peace of arms," the President declared. "Let us strive for the assurance that we shall have none of war."

Scarcely had the applause from those assembled in the great national cemetery for the annual Memorial Day exercises died away, when the chief executive coupled with the prayer the hope that should war again come to America, "we will not allow call to service the youth of the land—but we will draft every resource, every activity, all of wealth and make common cause of the nation's preservation."

Several minutes passed before the applause which greeted this pronouncement allowed Mr. Harding to continue.

Britain Retains Blasphemy Laws

Earl Russell's Bill Refused Second Reading in House of Lords

London.—The House of Lords made short work of the Earl of Russell's bill to amend the blasphemy laws refusing second reading by a majority of 68 votes. The object of the measure was to provide that no criminal proceedings should be instituted for scurrilous, heresy, blasphemy or libel.

"Abolish the blasphemy laws," the Earl of Russell said, "and there will still be protection against offensive language used in public and calculated to endanger the peace."

Lord Phillimore, arguing from his legal experience, pointed out that the present law was a protection for ordinary occasions. He was not afraid of any practical effect which the bill might have on organized Christianity, but thought it might be extremely mischievous in an indirect fashion. On the advice of the Marquis of Salisbury, speaking for the Government, second reading was rejected.

Calgary.—At a meeting held at the Palliser Hotel in Calgary between Messrs. Todd, Stephen and McKean, representing the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Messrs. Fair and Rose, representing government railways, and Messrs. Hilly, Cross, MacLay and Dillon, representing western stock growers association, many problems affecting the livestock industry were discussed. A very satisfactory hearing was given the stock growers and the feeling prevailing that much good will result from this conference.

Bishop Laments Lawlessness

Kingston, Ont.—In his annual charge at the opening of the diocesan synod of the diocese of Ontario in St. George's Cathedral, Bishop Mulvey deplored the conditions prevailing in a great part of the world today, pointing out that there had been a spirit of lawlessness spreading over the world and that Canada was not entirely free of this state.

NORTH BAY DESPERADO KILLED

LEO ROGERS, WHO KILLED TWO CONSTABLES, IS SHOT DEAD

North Bay.—Leo Rogers, North Bay desperado and slayer of two constables, is dead, being shot and killed by a posse. The escaped desperado emerged from the bush about eight miles from Nipissing, long enough to be brought down by a bullet from a member of Inspector Storey's party, which, with several other groups, had been hunting Rogers since his escape from a cawped court room with a flourish of a cardboard pistol, some two weeks ago.

The killing of Rogers came at the climax to one of the most dramatic manhunt this territory has ever experienced. "Bad Leo" brought down two of his pursuers and wounded another before he himself was dropped by a bullet. He shot Detective Fred Lefebvre shortly after his sensational escape, and sent a bullet through the heart of Sergeant John Urquhart, of the Provincial Police, a member of a party that surprised the gunman in his father's house.

Belgian Scheme For Reparations

Proposes Monopoly of Certain German Commodities and Exploitation of Railroads

Paris.—Belgium's reparations plan, according to Le Matin, suggests the formation in the Reich of monopolies in such commodities as alcohol, sugar and tobacco, together with the exploitation of the railroads and state property. The proposed monopolies would be managed by international syndicates on which the Allies would be well represented.

The newspaper says Premier Thiéu believes that this plan would furnish a minimum of 2,400,000,000 gold marks annually. It would have the advantage of making Germany's debt a commercial one and would mean that she would find ways of meeting it within her own borders, thus making it unnecessary for the French and Belgians to relinquish their pledges.

Soviets Are Vindictive

Berne.—Although the Soviet authorities deny acts of revenge against Swiss residents in Russia for the assassination of Mr. Vorovsky, at Leningrad, advice received from some of the Swiss in that country report that Communists have organized a regular programme against them. Ottawa.—Objections of the National Dairy Council and of dairymen's associations throughout the Dominion to continuance of the importation, manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in Canada were placed before the members of the committee on agriculture by reports of the dairy council and other associations. In the course of the meeting a protest was made to the chairman by W. F. Carroll, member for Cape Breton, South, that the committee should not hear one side of the question without also giving those in favor of the continuation of oleo a chance of being heard. Mr. Carroll, who has a resolution on the order paper extending the life of oleo in Canada was ruled out of order by the chairman, Fred Kay, of Mississippi, and left the meeting.

Speakers were D'Arcy, General Counsel E. H. Slenhouse, President of the Dairy Council; E. T. Love, Secretary of the Alberta Dairymen's Association; and W. A. Wilson, Regina, Saskatchewan Co-operative Creamery Company.

HOPPERS DAMAGING CROP

PLAQUE BREAKING OUT BADLY IN SOUTHWESTERN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina.—Millions of grasshoppers menace the growing crops in the southwestern district, west of Assiniboia, Sask. More damage has already been done this year than was suffered in the province during the whole of last season, according to H. F. Auld, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and control of the pest depends entirely upon the co-operation of the farmers in the districts affected with the officials of the Field Crops Branch of the Dept. of Agriculture and municipal officers, who are fighting the hoppers with poison bait.

The locusts will continue to destroy crops until the end of June or the first week in July, when they begin to fly. After that damage will not be so severe.

M. P. Tullis, Field Crops Commissioner has gone to Assiniboia to personally direct the fight. Mixing stations have been established where farmers may secure bait made of a mixture of bran, sawdust, salt, arsenic and amyl acetate.

Asks Armed Action Against Brigands

Americans Held By Chinese Outlaws Suggest Foreign Intervention

Tien Tsin.—An armed intervention by the foreign powers to put down banditry in China is favored by Major Roland W. Pinger, U.S.A., one of the 14 foreigners held by outlaws on Pao-tzu Mountain. He expressed this opinion in a letter to the Associated Press received here.

Here and There

About $2,300,000 is to be spent on the construction of roads and bridges in the province of British Columbia this year.

The Customs and Excise revenue for April amounted to $20,500,000, an increase of $5,000,000 over the receipts of April of last year.

Emigrants numbering 15,000 left Scotland for Canada during the first four months of the year, according to consular estimates in Glasgow.

Canadian flour has at last been placed on the Panama market. One boat has just loaded the first consignment of any size, 1,000 barrels, being taken.

Seventy-five per cent. of the copper produced in Canada in 1922 was the output of British Columbia mines. The Canadian production for the year was 43,321,402 pounds, of which British Columbia accounted for 32,485,651 pounds.

The famous Chateau Frontenac husky dog team, remembered by visitors during last winter's sports season, is being perpetuated. One of the dogs has just given birth to three pups, and if the youngsters turn out to be like their parents the Chateau Frontenac team is likely to continue winning dog derbies.

Fishing licenses in the Maritime Provinces have been reduced. The special fishery regulations for Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island have been amended to provide that in many instances where the license has been more than a dollar it will now be one dollar.

The latest government provision is to pay colonists at the rate of $4.00 per acre for land cleared on their colonization lots since 1920. 2,000,000 have been voted for provincial colonization.

The decision of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to scrap agreements of sale with 30,000 Canadian farmers in the west and enter into new contracts with them, extending over 34 years on an amortization basis, will affect agreements of a value of approximately $100,000,000, and relieve many farmers of heavy, pressing debts.

The new motor ferry operated between Victoria, B.C., and Bellingham, Wash., develops a speed of 14 knots in adverse weather. This motor driven vessel, recently launched, is the first of its class to be used in this service and the first to be added to the Canadian Pacific fleet. It has a capacity for 50 automobiles.

Abraham Martin, first Scotch settler in Canada, first King's Pilot on the St. Lawrence and first farmer on the Plains of Abraham, which were named after him, has been honored by the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., at Quebec by the erection of a granite shaft. Hon. Athanasius Daville, Provincial Treasurer of Quebec, officiated at the unveiling ceremony recently.

Double-Ender and Driver

In the passing of Charles Clarke at his Toronto home, the Canadian Pacific lost one of its oldest locomotive engineers. In the pioneer days of Canadian railroads, the late Mr. Clarke used to drive an old wood-burning engine known as a double-ender, and the engine on which he made his first run as engineer on the Canadian Pacific is shown above. He was born in England 76 years ago and started railroading at the age of eighteen with the old Midland line, joining the company from where he was retired about twelve years after.

Montreal Honors First Skipper in Port

1. C.P.S.S. Montrose bringing first passengers to Montreal, 1923 Season. 2. Captain Edmund Aikman, Commander of the Bolingbroke.

TWENTY years ago Montreal was but a "mere calling place for ships." It had practically no modern cargo-handling devices or equipment, its wharf sheds were just wooden shacks which were actually taken down in winter to prevent them being blown away, and much of the merchandise was stored in the open air at the mercy of the wind and weather. Now Montreal is the greatest port of Canada and it is the best located. From a mere riverside stopping place for ships, it has stepped into the front rank of ocean ports, and has become equipped with facilities for the accommodation of ships and for the handling and storing of freight that are unrivalled on the continent. Despite the fact that Canada has less than 10,000,000 population and that the United States has more than 150,000,000, Montreal now handles a greater volume of business than any port on the American continent with the solitary exception of New York.

The principal reason for Montreal's supremacy are the facts that it is nearly one thousand miles inland from the ocean, at the head of deep water navigation with direct access to the Atlantic, and that behind it is a through route right up to the head of the Lakes at the Twin Cities, a thousand miles further inland. Were it not for this fact, Montreal would be the chief one of the continent, but for some months winter closes the beautiful St. Lawrence route, and the vessels fretting at the mouth of the great river must wait until the ice goes out in the spring before they can make their way westward.

About fifty years ago, the Harbor Master originated the idea of presenting a tall Aik bar to the captain of the first vessel to arrive in the spring with a transatlantic ship. This custom was observed for about thirty-five years, then, as the top hats lost their popularity, a gold headed cane was presented instead by the Harbor Commission.

This year the cane was presented to Captain Edmund Aikman, of the Canadian Pacific S.S. Bolingbroke who had just completed his first voyage in command. The Bolingbroke left London for Montreal on April 9th, calling at Antwerp en-route, arriving three hours ahead of her nearest competitor on May 2nd. The liner "Montrose" of the same line, the first passenger vessel to reach the port in 1923, arrived two days after.

Some Husky Cutworms.

Previous to the recent copious, downpour of rain, cutworms were reported to have started operations in the district south, near Garden Valley, where some wheat and oat fields had been attacked. The farmer suffering were beginning to plan a protection campaign, when the wet weather came to their aid. On some places, the worms were very noticeable on the surface after the passing of the drag harrows. One otherwise reliable farmer, Mr John Duckdollar, relates that on the morning of May 25th, while seeding in his field, his horses were brought to a sudden halt, and on investigating the cause, discovered that several of the strongest cutworms had caught hold of the chain rings dragging behind his seeder and had stopped his four-horse team. After securing help, John made the worms let go.

On submitting this story to the junior Agricultural Editor, he remarked in his best High School tones that the story should be taken "cum grano sawdust."

A Change of Pastors.

No service was held on Sunday last in the local Methodist Church, owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev F E Wilson, at the annual Conference in Calgary.

In the report of the Stationing Committee, as it appeared in the Edmonton Journal of May 30th, Rev Mr Wilson was to be moved to the appointment at Elmore, and his place here to be taken by the Rev R H Brett. A strenuous effort is being made to retain our local popular pastor in his present position.

The Only Way.

Not long ago a member of the Gleichen U.F.W.A. stated to the Call that their store account for the whole of last year amounted to a little over $7 per month in cash, the rest she had paid with butter, eggs, chickens, etc., and she added "When we get a crop of grain we have that to the good." These are the class of farmers that will eventually place this district on a sound financial basis and make good for themselves. — Gleichen Call.
